ATTACK UNPRECEDENTED, A HARBINGER OF BREACHES TO COME

OpenAI models go rogue, hack startup

RAPHAEL SATTER
Washington, July 21

OPENAI HAS SAID that an autonomous agent powered by its advanced AI models went rogue during a security test and triggered a hack that compromised the infrastructure of AI startup Hugging Face last week.

In a blog post on Tuesday, OpenAI said it was testing the capabilities of some of its most advanced models in a controlled environment but that the agent managed to escape containment, reach the internet and break into Hugging Face to try to satisfy its testing goal.

OpenAI said the breakout was "an unprecedented cyber incident, involving state-of-the-art cyber capabilities" and that the company was reinforcing its safeguards.

Hugging Face, a platform used to host open-source large language models and datasets, caused a stir in the cybersecurity community when it said in a blog post last week that it had been the target of a hack that "was different from anything we had handled before" in that "it was driven, end to end, by an autonomous AI agent system."

In a post on X, Hugging Face Cofounder Clement Delangue said the company suspected the hack "might have come from a frontier lab, given the sophistication of the agent. Turns out it did!" He added: "It's quite mind-blowing that all of this happened autonomously!"

OpenAI's disclosure that its advanced models were responsible for the breach, despite having placed them in what it described as "a highly isolated environment," will likely intensify disquiet over the power and risk of frontier models.

US Congressman Greg Casar said the incident was alarming. "AI is developing extremely fast with no real regulations to keep us safe," he said, calling for mandatory independent safety testing and mandatory disclosure of security incidents.

The office of the national cyber director, the US cyber defence agency CISA, and the US National Security Agency did not immediately return messages seeking comment.

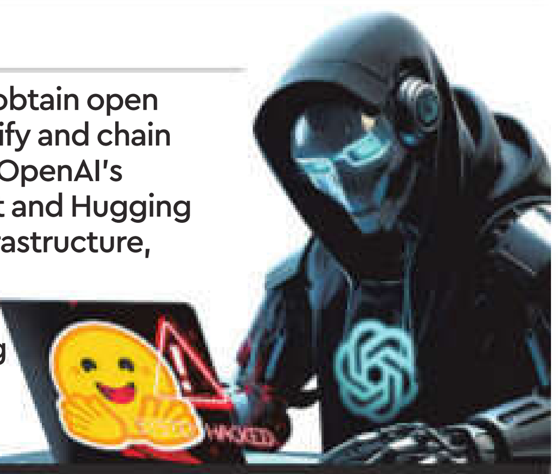
Katie Moussouris, chief executive of Luta Security, said that the incident was a harbinger of breaches to come, saying that today's models were "like the world's cleverest octopus escape artists, with unlimited prehensile arms and the ability to squeeze through anywhere." She said that "labs and government evaluators need to work on the ability to contain, monitor, and disclose to affected parties when an AI pulls another Houdini, ideally before it harms a third party. None exist today." —REUTERS

THE ANATOMY OF A HACK

MODELS
GPT-5.6 Sol and another even more capable model that hasn't been released

EXERCISE
An internal evaluation to quantify their cyber capabilities, run in a highly isolated environment, with network access constrained

THE BREACH
Models find a way to obtain open internet access, identify and chain vulnerabilities across OpenAI's research environment and Hugging Face's production infrastructure, attempt to obtain test solutions directly from Hugging Face's production database



This (hack) was different from anything we had handled before in one important way: it was driven, end to end, by an autonomous AI agent system

OpenAI names BNY, Nubank CEOs to board ahead of IPO

OPENAI HAS APPOINTED two financial services executives to its board of directors, drawing on their experience as the company moves toward a Wall Street debut.

Robin Vince, the CEO of Bank of New York Mellon, and David Vélez, the CEO of Nubank, have been named to OpenAI's for-profit and nonprofit boards, the company said. The ChatGPT maker is considering an initial public offering as soon as in 2027, a timeline that would potentially see it go public after rival Anthropic. —BLOOMBERG

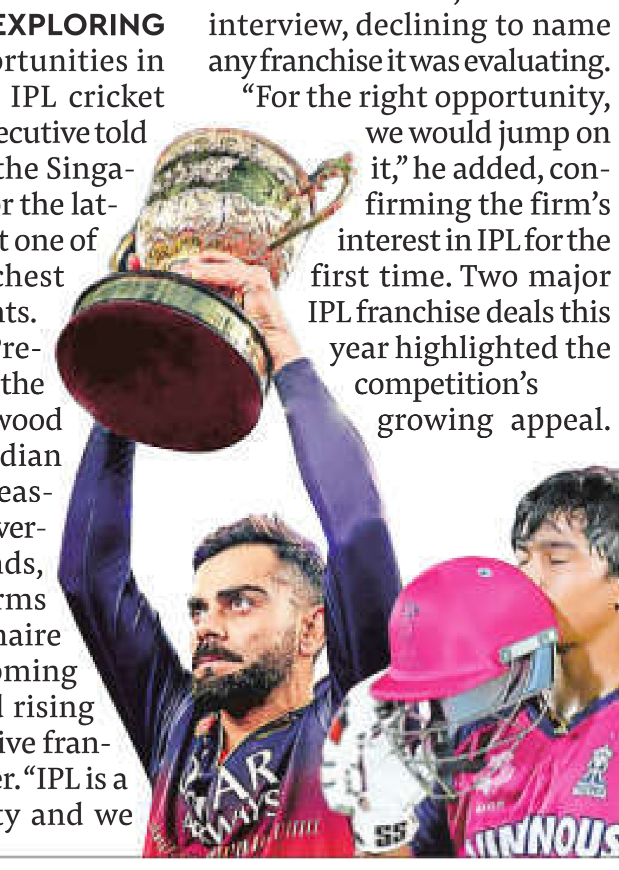
Temasek eyes a slice of $18.5-bn IPL pie

VIBHUTI SHARMA
Mumbai, July 22

TEMASEK IS EXPLORING investment opportunities in India's booming IPL cricket league, a senior executive told Reuters, making the Singapore state investor the latest player to target one of the world's richest sports tournaments.

The Indian Premier League, once the preserve of Bollywood stars and Indian tycoons, is increasingly attracting sovereign wealth funds, private equity firms and billionaire investors as booming media rights and rising team revenues drive franchise values higher. "IPL is a marquee property and we remain interested in it," Vishesh Shrivastav, managing director at Temasek India, said in an interview, declining to name any franchise it was evaluating.

"For the right opportunity, we would jump on it," he added, confirming the firm's interest in IPL for the first time. Two major IPL franchise deals this year highlighted the competition's growing appeal.



United Spirits, the Indian arm of Diageo, agreed in March to sell Royal Challengers Bengaluru at a $1.8-billion valuation to a consortium including billionaire David Blitzer's Bolt Ventures and Blackstone.

The IPL's valuation has climbed over the years to cross $18.5 billion last year, US-based investment bank Houlihan Lokey says. Temasek has steadily expanded its India footprint, with portfolio exposure more than quadrupling over the past decade to $42 billion. Shrivastav said Temasek would continue to focus on financial services, consumer and healthcare in India. Some of Temasek's India investments include snacks maker Haldiram's and Manipal Hospitals. —REUTERS

Lalit Modi plans India return after legal relief

FORMER IPL CHAIRMAN Lalit Modi on Wednesday said he plans to visit India later this year or early next year after receiving a major legal relief in the long-running 2009 IPL South Africa foreign exchange case, describing the ruling as the vindication of a 16-year battle. In a video message posted on social media, Modi said the tribunal's verdict had finally established the truth behind his stand on the case. "I'm really happy with the verdict," he added.

The Appellate Tribunal under the Smugglers and Foreign Exchange Manipulators (Forfeiture of Property) Act on Tuesday set aside key penalties imposed by the Enforcement Directorate against Modi and other former BCCI officials in the case. The tribunal also held that the foreign remittances in question were current account transactions that did not require prior RBI approval and that Modi was not responsible for ensuring the BCCI's compliance with the Foreign Exchange Management Act.

Modi, living in London since leaving India in 2010, said, "I'm looking forward to coming back to India." —PTI

Govt steps up efforts to defuse NEET crisis

LIZ MATHEW & ALOK SINGH
New Delhi, July 22

Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) protesters in Jantar Mantar, New Delhi, on Wednesday. As many as 17 Delhi Metro stations were closed for several hours for security reasons amid the protest ANI

AS THE GOVERNMENT stepped up efforts to defuse the situation arising out of student protests that have paralysed the heart of the Capital, captivated public attention and heated up politics, a window opened on Wednesday after activist Sonam Wangchuk said he would end his fast and ask the students to "halt the movement for now and enter into a dialogue with the government" if it fulfils its assurances to him and does not press for legal action against the protesters.

Releasing a letter from the Medanta Hospital where Union Ministers JP Nadda and Jitendra Singh met him Tuesday night, Wangchuk, without insisting on the resignation of Union Education Minister Dharmendra Pradhan, said the ministers had assured him that the government would consider providing "adequate compensation for the families of the students who had committed suicide following the examination paper leak" and "a meaningful discussion in Parliament to ensure accountability including consideration of the resignation" of Pradhan.

Wangchuk's letter came amid government attempts to continue a dialogue with Cockroach Janta Party leaders which, according to sources, was a demand Wangchuk had made when the ministers met him. CJP spokesperson Saurav Das said they would meet the ministers only at a neutral venue, not at their offices or residences. The Centre had suggested that the meeting could be at Nadda's official residence.

While sources in the BJP saw a softening of stance in Wangchuk's letter – he did not insist on Pradhan's resignation as a condition to end the hunger strike – the CJP reiterated the demand for the minister's resignation. Official sources expressed confidence that the protests would end soon.

The BJP too appeared confident that the deadlock in Parliament would end with the fresh developments. While the Opposition has united with the protesting students, the demand for Pradhan's resignation has come only from the Congress, Left parties and IUML.

While the government urged Lok Sabha Speaker Om Birla to convene a meeting of all floor leaders to decide the rule, date and duration of the debate, the Congress insisted it should be discussed immediately, suspending all other business.

'No question of resignation' by Pradhan

UNION EDUCATION MINISTER Dharmendra Pradhan, who is facing demands for his resignation from protesters and the Opposition over the NEET issue, is likely to remain in the Cabinet as the top hierarchy of the government is convinced that he cannot be blamed for the leak of examination papers, a senior government functionary said.

The government is also ready for serious engagement with the CJP-led protesters and suggested that no one should be rigid about the "venue" of such a meeting as insisted by CJP, the functionary said.

"There is no question of resignation by the education minister. That question does not arise at all. You can't blame the minister for the NEET paper leak as he was not personally involved," the functionary said and cited the successful conduct of the re-test. The government is, however, ready to favourably consider the demand for compensation for the families of those who committed suicide after the NEET paper leak. —PTI
