OWAISI EYES INDIA BLOC TIE-UP FOR UP ELECTIONS

Biswajeet Banerjee
LUCKNOW

After years of projecting himself as an independent challenger to both the BJP and regional parties, AIMIM chief Asaduddin Owaisi appears to be recalibrating his Uttar Pradesh strategy. His public appeal for a pre-poll alliance with Opposition parties signals an attempt to counter allegations that his party splits anti-BJP votes.

Addressing a public meeting in Moradabad, Owaisi urged Opposition parties to unite to prevent the division of anti-BJP votes and offered immediate talks on a seat-sharing arrangement. The move is being seen as an acknowledgment that AIMIM's independent electoral strategy has failed to translate into seats despite a gradual increase in vote share.

AIMIM's Uttar Pradesh president Shaukat Ali cited Bihar as an example, claiming the Opposition ignored the party's alliance proposal despite AIMIM winning five Assembly seats there. He said Uttar Pradesh should avoid repeating what the party described as the Bihar mistake.

The outreach comes as political parties begin mobilising for the 2027 Uttar Pradesh Assembly elections, with the Samajwadi Party (SP) positioning itself as the BJP's principal challenger. AIMIM's proposal puts the SP in a difficult position. Accepting it could invite criticism from sections of non-Muslim voters, while rejecting it could allow AIMIM to accuse the Opposition of dividing minority votes.

Political observers say the move is also driven by AIMIM's electoral performance in Uttar Pradesh. The party contested 38 seats in the 2017 Assembly elections but failed to win any, securing 0.24% of the vote. In 2022, it contested nearly 100 seats and increased its vote share to around 0.49%, yet failed to win a single seat.

Despite not securing any victories, AIMIM emerged as a factor in several closely contested constituencies where its candidates polled more votes than the BJP's winning margin over the SP. This fuelled Opposition allegations that the party indirectly benefited the BJP by dividing Muslim votes.

Rather than dismissing those allegations, Owaisi now appears to be addressing them politically. By proposing an alliance, AIMIM is seeking to project itself as a contributor to Opposition unity rather than an electoral spoiler.

The party has also intensified its campaign in western Uttar Pradesh, holding meetings in Moradabad, Saharanpur and Bahraich, with similar events planned in Kanpur, Azamgarh and Balrampur. These districts have sizeable Muslim populations and are considered crucial to the SP's electoral strategy.

The SP has responded cautiously. Party leaders said any decision on an alliance would require consultation at the highest level and pointed to ideological differences. SP spokesperson Abbas Haider said every party has the democratic right to contest elections but maintained that voters distinguish between parties with a sustained grassroots presence and those that become active only during elections.

Whether the INDIA bloc embraces AIMIM or keeps it at arm's length, Owaisi's alliance pitch has intensified the debate over Opposition unity and the contest for Muslim votes ahead of the 2027 Assembly elections.

Honour promise, withdraw
FIRs, CJP reacts to SC rulingAgencies
NEW DELHI

The Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) on Tuesday responded to the Supreme Court's order allowing investigations into FIRs registered during the nationwide student protests to continue, saying it was contrary to the assurances given by the Centre during negotiations that led to the end of the agitation.

Responding to the Supreme Court's order, CJP spokesperson Saurav Das said that the CJP respected any direction issued by the TOP court in the interest of students, but maintained that its own demands, agreed upon during negotiations with the government, had to be fulfilled first.

"If the Supreme Court is acting in the interest of the youth, we welcome such orders or judgments," Das said. "We, on the other hand, have been active on the ground for a long time, and we have certain demands that must be met; that is the most important thing."

He said that one of the central demands to end the protest was the withdrawal of all FIRs against protesters and

Sibal said that CJP will be creating a website with details of students who have been subject to FIRs

the release of those detained. Sibal donates Rs 1 crore to CJP's legal aid fund for arrested NEET protesters

Rajya Sabha MP and senior advocate Kapil Sibal on Monday announced a contribution of Rs 1 crore to the legal aid fund set up by the CJP to support protesters, including students, facing police cases over recent NEET-related agitations.

Sibal said the fund would help track legal cases filed against students and protesters across states and provide legal assistance through a network of lawyers. He said peaceful protesters in places such as Bihar, Assam, Bengal and Maharashtra should not face legal action and called for the withdrawal of FIRs filed against them.

Besides Sibal's donation, CJP said the legal aid fund will be open to public contributions through the upcoming website. The senior advocate emphasised that even small donations would help sustain legal assistance for students facing cases across different states. The organisation said it has already begun coordinating with lawyers in multiple regions and plans to expand its legal support network nationwide.

CJP spokesperson Das said there was credible apprehension of criminal cases being lodged against students across the country despite the assurance given by the Centre. He said that the CJP was in touch with the Supreme Court lawyer to seek legal aid for the students booked by the police.

Sibal, seated alongside Das, confirmed his agreement to provide financial aid to the CJP.

In a press conference on Tuesday, Das said that there was credible apprehension of criminal cases being lodged against students across the country despite the assurance given by the Union Government.

Das said that the CJP has been in touch with the senior advocate to address the adverse situation where legal aid may need to be extended to the affected persons. Responding, Sibal stated that he had agreed to extend legal help and announced that the CJP will create a website laying down details of those students who have been adversely affected as a consequence of FIRs being lodged against them. Additionally, the website would allow lawyers who want to extend aid, pro bono or otherwise, to join.
